Ingenious Utility Adds Conversion Feature To All Windows Apps

Unit Scout is an ingenious program which adds conversion facilities (feet and inches to metres, grams to pounds and ounces, etc etc) to almost every Windows program, including the MS-DOS command prompt. For example, open up Excel and, in a cell, type 36ft>>m and press the space bar. The >> indicates that you want to perform a conversion, and pressing the space bar kicks off the process. So when you type 36ft>>m and press space, Unit Scout recognises your keystrokes and changes what you've typed to the correct number of metres.

I've tested Unit Scout in Word, Excel, a command prompt, and a handful of other applications, and it works flawlessly.
